JOHNSON CONTROLS A Major Contributor to the FTC

Tucked away between Seneca and Walhalla is a manufacturing plant that is part of a world-wide company known as Johnson Controls. Although it produces many types of products in its far-flung operations, the one that is produced at the Seneca, SC, plant is a battery case. Chances are, if you open the hood to your car, the battery case inside will have been manufactured at the Seneca plant. Johnson Controls produces a huge share of the world market for these ever present car parts!

Several years ago, the company began a “green“ initiative known as the Blue Sky Project, and as part of this program, the Foothills Trail Conference has been given a monetary grant to help, primarily with its trail maintenance activities. This has made it possible for the Conference to buy tools and other materials used to keep the Trail in tip-top shape.

Another aspect of the Blue Sky Project is that the company encourages its employees to contribute their time and energy on a volunteer basis to help the group that gets the monetary grant. Johnson Controls employees, sometimes with their family members, have performed maintenance on several sections of the Foothills Trail, primarily cutting back vegetation to keep the Trail open for hikers, backpackers, and Fishermen. Since most of the Trail above Walhalla traverses National Forest land, this is also of great benefit to the U.S. Forest Service.

According to Heyward Douglass, Executive Director of the Foothills Trail Conference, Johnson Control employees, sometimes more than a dozen, have helped clear portions of the Trail that were getting overgrown, especially in the spring and early summer. Douglass said the Saturday they were scheduled to work this summer was a particularly hot one, but seven hardy volunteers from the company tackled a parking area, trailside growth, and cleared brush obscuring a directional sign. After several hours of hot, sweaty work, the Conference treated the volunteers to cold drinks and ice-cold watermelon. “As hot as it was, we were very grateful that they came out at all!, said Douglass.

2016 ANNUAL MEETING PICTURE SHOW

Do you have some great pictures of your fun along the Foothills Trail? OF COURSE YOU DO! In this day of digital pictures, everyone shoots up a storm. At the 2016 Annual Meeting we will have a slideshow of digital pictures taken along the Trail. They may be waterfalls, hikers, camping, wildflowers, sunsets, animals—anything you think others would enjoy. You may email pictures to info@foothillstrail.org or bring the picture files on a standard USB thumb drive and we'll load them onto a picture show computer. The digital slideshow will run at various times throughout the weekend. By sending your pictures, you are also giving us permission to use them on our social media sites, such as Facebook and Instagram, as well as our website. Thanks!

WATERFALLS & WILDFLOWERS

In the Southern Appalachians

-- Thirty Great Hikes --

Author TIM SPIRA, a Clemson University professor for many years, has combined two of the favorite reasons for going on a hike and produced a practical and informative guide to enjoying more than two dozen hikes in the southeast.

If you love waterfalls, here are some of the best hikes in the Southern Appalachians. And if you love plants – or would simply like to learn more about them – you will be in hiking heaven: naturalist Tim Spira’s guide-book links waterfalls and wildflowers in a spectacularly beautiful region famous for both. Leading you to gorgeous waterfalls in Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, South Carolina, and Georgia, the book includes many hikes in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park and along the Blue Ridge Parkway. As he surveys one of America’s most biologically diverse regions, Spira introduces hikers to the “natural communities” approach for identifying and understanding plants within the context of the habitats they occupy.

Each of the 30 hikes includes a detailed map and GPS coordinates, as well as a lively trail description highlighting the plants you are most likely to see – as well as birds and other animals – along the way. It also includes an associated plant species list.

Also featured in the book are beautiful color photographs of the 30 destination waterfalls, 125 plants, and more. The guide includes detailed descriptions of 125 key plant species, 22 drawings to help identify plant structures, and a glossary of botanical terms. You can read more at www.wildflowerecology.blogspot.com. Published by UNC Press, the guide is available in bookstores or online.
